Vanishing Assets

Infinite Complex occasionally invests in real estate transactions. While it is a fraction of the scope of Infinite Complex endeavors it is an area that just about everyone has some experience. A phrase which has been used time over time is a quote from Mark Twain and you may have heard it before, “Buy land, they’re not making anymore”. Some say that land is the only asset that won’t disappear and will always increase in value.

Infinite Complex and Infinite Water are in pursuit of a second investment which disrupts the Twain quote in part. Land is not the only asset that they’re not making any more of. Fresh, clean water is a contender. Because year after year, for the past several decades, global drought has been reducing the amount of fresh clean water.

Infinite Water recognizes that if you think you, or the area where you live, is not affected by water shortage you are out of touch with facts. Fact 1: people and most animals cannot live more than 5 days without potable water. Fact 2: the impact of drought threatens agriculture, food security, transportation, hydropower energy production as well as drinking water supplies and that affects you!

Infinite Complex constantly seeks innovative technology that addresses the escalating global water crises. Currently, Infinite Water has developed the apex in Atmospheric Water Generation and is heavily involved in water recycling and distribution with many avenues for expansion. It is with brilliant concepts as these that maybe the difference between the survival or perish of life on earth
